

County of Grande Prairie No. 1

One of the fastest growing regions in the country, the County of Grande Prairie balances small town living with all the big city amenities. Located in Northwestern Alberta, approximately 460 kilometers northwest of Edmonton and 160 kilometers east of the Rocky Mountains, the County encompasses the City of Grande Prairie, three towns, one village, five hamlets and several country residential communities. Horse Lake First Nation, a Federal Indian Reserve, is also located within the County boundaries. The region offers a wide variety of recreational, educational, sports and cultural opportunities ideal for families and people of all ages. The growing economy of this region is supported mainly by the agriculture, oil & gas, forestry, manufacturing, construction and tourism industries.
