About Bridgewater

Bridgewater is a thriving town of just under 9,000 people, nestled in the heart of the historic LaHave River Valley on Nova Scotia's South Shore.

Long-embracing its reputation as the "Main Street of the South Shore," Bridgewater is the hub and service of Lunenburg County. Located about an hour's drive from the provincial capital in Halifax and less than 20 minutes from some of the best beaches Canada has to offer, Bridgewater possesses the warm, small-town charm so many crave, while offering a variety of services to meet the needs of you or your family and make your day-to-day life easy.

With an extensive parks and trails network, including the 8-kilometre Centennial Trail spanning the town, and state-of-the-art recreation and arts facilities, such as the Lunenburg County Lifestyle Centre, the HB Studios Sports Centre, and DesBrisay Museum, Bridgewater has something for all ages and interests.
